

THE STRUGGLE IS REAL

Afro-Asian Solidarity in the Post-Civil Rights Era

Thursday, April 11, 2019

4:00–5:30 p.m.

UCSB Asian American Studies Conference Room
HSSB 5024

Locating Afro-Asian solidarity in Grace Lee Boggs's vision of education, the scholar-activism of Margo Okazawa-Rey, and the work of Asian American grassroots organizers within the #BlackLivesMatter movement, Jeanelle Hope highlights the various ways in which Afro-Asian solidarity has manifested in the post-Civil Rights era. The talk will also grapple with the politics of solidarity-building and identify factors that have thwarted Afro-Asian solidarity.

JEANELLE K. HOPE

Ph.D. Candidate in Cultural Studies
University of California, Davis

Questions? Contact Professor Diane Fujino at fujino@ucsb.edu

Hosted by the Department of Asian American Studies, Department of Black Studies, and Center for Black Studies Research, UCSB